HOME-COMING.

Over mountain and vale, among strange places
we roam,
Yet the sweetest of pleasures await us at home,
From greetings beam the luster of true, honest
grace,
And warm is the welcome in smiles of the face.
The winds blow softer, streams wimple more clear,
The scenes of our youth by absence made dear.
Those hills look more green, flowers much brighter have grown,
And the roses smell sweeter in the gardens at home.
The birds warble softly; more sweetly they sing
Of dreams of the past where fond memories cling.
We may view in the distance palace, minaret and dome;
Still closer to the heart is the dear old cottage
home.
Though a mist dims the eye and a dew wets the cheek
Midst the pleasures when old acquaintances meet,
'Tis only proof how near we approach the divine,
As hands lovingly grasp for Auld Lang Syne.
Now a pledge to welcome the absent ones together again,
May the dreams of their youth be their joyous refrain;
The place of their birth and sweet memories of
home
Be enshrined in their hearts where'er they may roam.

THAT the brick street question is settled, for a time at least, it may be worth while to remark that the Cincinnati Baseball Club has won a game.

HAVING paid about $12,000,000 for a title, three kids and a few years residence in Paris, the Countess Boni de Castellane will return to New York with a divorce and her sister, Miss HELEN GOULD. Count Boni will probably marry some other fool American woman.

THE accepted bid for building the brick streets looks very favorable, being within the Engineer's estimate and a shade less than the same class of work has been let elsewhere. Now, let the Engineer watch the job closely, while the city officials and the taxpayers watch the whole business.

EVERYTHING comes to those who work hard enough and wait long enough. After a campaign of more than thirty years, sometimes waged with considerable vigor, The Ledger Man sees the real beginning of Maysville's rejuvenation—the construction of brick streets. After they are built, the people will wonder how on earth they ever got along without them, and why they spent in thirty years $150,000 for the alternating mud roads and dusty lanes that have cursed the old town—and been cursed in turn.

FORAKER AND RATE REGULATION.

Senator FORAKER's vote against the Rate Bill comes as a matter of regret to all Ohio Republicans. It was a duty which the Senator owed to the party to set aside any doubts he may have had as to the constitutionality of the measure and follow his party's policy. Congress is a political body, using the phrase in its highest meaning, not a judicial one. While for Congress to enact legislation which is knowingly unconstitutional would be folly, it is no part of its work to reject a measure in a virgin field because possibly it might be unconstitutional. The policy embarked in by the Federal Legislature is new, and its legal phases have yet to be sifted out; indeed, it can be truly said that there is a question of the constitutionality of any measure of this sort. But constitutionality is not a question for Congress to determine. The Constitution reposes the judicial power in another co-ordinate branch of the Government.

The Republican party, through the sentiments of the Executive and its members in both branches of Congress, determined upon the regulation of railway rates as a policy and upon the terms of a measure embodying this policy. It was the duty of every Republican in Congress to set aside any opinion he may have had as to the legal phases of the question and vote for the party measure.

As we understand it, Senator FORAKER has always declared himself in favor of the regulation of railway rates, but has centered his opposition upon his belief as a lawyer that pending measures were unconstitutional. But, as we have said, the Senate Chamber is not a Courtroom in which is decided the constitutionality, or the lack of it, of any legislation. There only the political phases—that is, the wisdom and the justness of any policy—are passed upon.

Senator FORAKER, in his devotion to the law, has permitted himself to be engineered into a position of apparent antagonism not only to the wishes of the Republicans of the state, but of the Nation. He has failed to remember that he is a Senator and not a Judge.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

All of which is very queer logic, and worthy of a Kentucky legislator who knowingly votes for an unconstitutional redistricting bill for the sole reason that it helps his party.

Senator FORAKER may have incurred the displeasure of the "political trimmers" by his vote; but he stands before the country as an honest man, true to his convictions of right, and not as one who would stultify himself to gain the temporary applause of the rabble. If it shall turn out that the Supreme Court declares the Railroad Rate Bill unconstitutional, I'd rather be Senator FORAKER than any of the fellows who voted for it for policy and party sake.

From every section of the Ohio Valley comes the cry for rain.

In August I purchased a box of Cascarets and was surprised to find that I 'had 'em'—yes—a wiggling, squirming mass left me. CRISIS OF GIRLHOOD

A TIME OF PAIN AND PERIL

Miss Emma Cole Says that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has Saved Her Life and Made Her Well.

How many lives of beautiful young girls have been sacrificed just as they were ripening into womanhood! How many irregularities or displacements have been developed at this important period, resulting in years of suffering!

A mother should come to her child's aid at this critical time and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will prepare the system for the coming change and start this trying period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities.

Miss Emma Cole of Tullahoma, Tenn., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham: "I want to tell you that I am enjoying better health than I have for years, and I owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

"When fourteen years of age I suffered almost constant pain, and for two or three years I had soreness and pain in my side, headaches and was dizzy and nervous, and doctors all failed to help me."

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended, and after taking it my health began to improve rapidly, and I think it saved my life. I sincerely hope my experience will be a help to other girls who are passing from girlhood to womanhood, for I know your Compound will do as much for them."

If you know of any young girl who is sick and needs motherly advice ask her to write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and she will receive free advice which will put her on the right road to a strong, healthy and happy womanhood. Mrs. Pinkham is daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge.

"HOME-COMING AND HOME-GOING"

Theme of Sunday Morning's Touching Sermon at the First M. E. Church, South

"Home Coming and Home-Going" was the subject of a very able sermon delivered Sunday morning at the First M. E. Church, South, by the Pastor, Rev. Felix K. Struve. Mr. Struve took his text from Psalm 137, and from Hebrews 13:14, and spoke substantially as follows—

It is sometimes profitable to touch the pulse of public thought and from the diagnosis project some great spiritual truth.

The spirit of the "Home-Coming and Home-Going" is in the very air we breathe. The man who first expressed the idea now largely being proclaimed by the press and people, is deserving of the highest praise. It is not a new thought, as we shall see, but one that always arouses the most intense enthusiasm, and stirs the very depths of the emotions.

The subject announced is neither contradictory or tautological. Home-Coming and Home-Going are kindred thoughts, closely allied but distinct. I might say that two classes are concerned in this movement—those who are going home are rejoicing in the prospect and expectation; and those who are looking for the return of loved ones long since absent.

My first remarks have to do with the present exodus of Kentuckians from all parts of our great country, back to the old "Bluegrass State"—the land of corn and wine, also the land of milk and honey. I may not better begin my remarks than by the quotation of some verses recently written by a young Miss of 15,—Frazie Kirk of Sandhorn, Ind.—

"I saw in the home paper from Kentucky 'other day

That natives of Kentucky from places far away Was comin' home in June sometime to spend a day or two Among the friends and relatives that they once loved and knew."

So I guess I'll start back homeward toward the scene of better days, Where in life's sunshiny springtime the birds sang sweetest lays; Back to dear old Kentucky, where the happy mock-bird trills, For he's glad he's in Kentucky 'mong her sheltering, green-clad hills."

To be proud of one's native state is no sin; how well then may one be proud, if his native state is the land of bluegrass and beauty! As Paul was proud of the fact that he was of the tribe of Benjamin, so is the speaker, as well as many in this audience, proud that old Kentucky was the place of nativity. I, too, am a Kentuckian, and nowhere on this earth does the sun shine so bright as in my old Kentucky home. I cannot resist another quotation from a Kentucky poet of some celebrity—Mr. W. J. Lampton—

We are coming, Old Kentucky, Six hundred thousand more, From Mississippi's winding stream And far New England's shore; We leave our farms and offices, The outlike things we like, With our hearts too full for utterance, And homeward all we hike. You have asked us, and we're coming, All the young ones and the old, All the men and all the women, Who are now outside the fold; We are hungry for the welcome That we know is waiting there, We are thirsting for the "flow'dys" That we know will fill the air. We have waited long, and waiting Makes us home to see you, shore— We are coming, Old Kentucky, Six hundred thousand more.

With the expression of these thoughts we are able to approximate and appreciate the sentiment expressed in the Psalm read as our text. We are in sympathy with that spirit of "Home-sickness" that filled the hearts of God's chosen people who lived so long ago. The story of their servitude is too long to relate here and now. However hard may have been their condition, harder still was that ever-present, longing desire for the sight of their native heath. How the visions of the vine-clad hills came before them; in the midst of duty and drudgery, or engaged in willing worship, the picture was ever before their mental eyes—the picture of their blessed Jerusalem.

The sweet singer of Israel touched the minor keys of the harp as he sang and played the plaintive, sad, sweet words here written. It was a kindred spirit that sang in the heart of John Howard Payne, as he composed the words of that immortal poem—"Home, Sweet Home."

How similar that spirit will appear from a quotation of the lines:

"Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam, Still, be it ever so humble, there's no place like home. A charm from the skies seems to hallow it there, Which, go through the world, you'll not meet with elsewhere."

Home, home, sweet home! There's no place like home. An exile from home, pleasure dazzles in vain; Ah! give me my lowly thatched cottage again! The birds singing sweetly that come to my call, Oh, give me sweet peace of mind, dearer than all! "Home, sweet, sweet home! There's no place like home."

However hallowed may be the theme, and

HOME-COMING HOME-GOING

however tender and sweet may be the memories, we must hasten to the concluding thoughts.

The most impressive of all impressions is the thought of the "Home land beyond the skies." This was in the mind of Abraham when he journeyed, seeking a city whose builder and maker was God! Ours is a transient condition; here we are pilgrims and sojourners; our citizenship is in heaven. The land of promise—the Canaan land—is still the country beyond us.

No matter how the heart thrills at the thought of return to the place of one's nativity; no matter how glad the greetings of many friends; these are transient blessings; these are only fore-shadows of the gladder greetings beyond the blue.

Have you read, recently, that wonderful description of John the Divine of the New Jerusalem—that city to which he looked, and to which we look, with a heart-hunger inexpressible? How much of inspiration there is in that picture—how much of human longing for home—how much of humility, or divinity, we may not say. But what a sympathetic picture it is!

A city that hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God! Not the workmanship of men, but the workmanship of God! Not a temporary home of wood or stone, subject to dissolution and destruction, but a home not built with hands, eternal in the heavens.

What a human picture it is; how it appeals to our hearts! There is to be no sickness there, nor death, nor sorrow, and God shall wipe away the tears that trickle down our cheeks—and the sweet song-bird of hope shall forever sing in our hearts the songs of rejoicing and eternal springtime! Thank God! for the prospective home-going to the land beyond the stars!

Pardon me if I do not hasten to the conclusion. There are yet a few words to be said.

May we not take a backward glance in review of the text? Do you see those weary pilgrims, sitting down by the rivers of Babylon—far from home and native country; the tears of sorrow sweep their cheeks; songs of praises are no more heard—heart-hunger has choked the powers of utterance; one by one they hang their instruments upon the nearby willow branches—and as they think of Zion, their beloved city of David, their Jerusalem—their breasts heave with emotion, and like children, weep as though their hearts would break!

Is it not so of us? As we go about the duties incident to our earthly career, is there not oftentimes a spirit of longing for the renewal of broken ties in the homeland beyond the skies? Is it irreverent to say that "we are thirsting and hungering for the happy How-dy's" and hand-grasp of those who have been so long and so far away?

To meet again those "whom we have loved and lost awhile," faces that have well-nigh faded from memory's page—to see them again in the full flush of radiant immortality! There we shall see him, our Lord, and be like him; there we shall see father, mother, sister, brother, wife, children, a multitude of friends—how our very hearts grow hungry with longing to see those blessed faces once again! Does not that hope make many a task easy, and many a burden light? I must admit that earth has for me no magnetic powers—to see the home-land, to be at home—the very thought overwhelms the soul. And they are looking for us! Over the balconies of heaven, with straining eyes and anxious spirits they are looking for our return!

Are words adequate to paint that scene of joy and rejoicing? Nay, verily. Amid the songs of gladness, the music of ten thousand thousand voices, hallelujahs and amens, they will meet us and greet us, and we shall be at home!

Meadows and pastures are suffering for rain.

The City Board of Equalization adjourned yesterday, after a four days session.

MAYSVILLE, KY., May 9th, 1906.
To Mason County People: As Chairman of the Finance Committee, I take this means to ask every family to render what financial assistance it can, in order that the Committee on "Home-Coming" can make the home-coming a grand success.

Possibly 75% of every family in Mason county will have relatives or dear friends coming here for this event, and it is a question now of money—how well we will be able to entertain them.

The Entertaining Committee is now waiting on our Committee to see how much money will be at their command.

Kindly send me what you can. It matters not how little, for every contribution will be highly appreciated.
MILLARD MENZ,
Chairman Finance Committee.

"HORSE ON HIM!"

Henry Wilson Finds Equine Bathing in the City Reservoir

Yesterday morning in making the rounds collecting his Times-Star subscription, it occurred to Mr. Henry Wilson while on Sixth street that he would climb the hill and view the landscape over from Reservoir Hill.

He had read of the beautiful sight that presented itself from this point of vantage, and that alone was the only incentive that possessed him to make the tiresome journey.

After reaching the brow of the hill, he sat down to rest and meanwhile feast his eyes on the enchanting panorama—the glow of the day-glow tinging the Eastern hills, the serpentine windings of the placid waters of the Ohio, the lofty hills, trees with verdant foliage, green lawns and fallow fields stretched out before his vision as far as the eye could reach.

It was a glorious morning and an inspiring sight, well worth the time and labor he had taken in making the journey.

He continued his meanderings and in passing the North basin of the reservoir his ethereal meditations were rudely awakened to things mundane and practical everyday life.

In the center of the basin he saw a horse with the water every minute encroaching the top of the animal's back.

The big pump at the waterworks was sending forth great volumes of water into the basin, and it was evident unless rescued the poor animal would soon be drowned.

Taking in the situation at a glance he hastily descended the hill and going to the Alms-house he phoned the office at the Pump House in the East End the condition of affairs, and his prompt action undoubtedly saved the horse from being drowned.

The gate leading to the reservoir had been left open by someone and the horse wandered in and had fallen into the basin.

Somebody owes Mr. Wilson a vote of thanks, if not the entire community.

It is safe to say that the girls of 1906 are sweeter and more beautiful than the girls of war times. The up-to-date girls all take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES.

Kidney Diseases Cause Half the Common Aches and Pains of Maysville People.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking-down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards diabetes and fatal Bright's disease. There is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys and cure every kidney ill. Maysville cures are the proof.

W. H. Paul, carpenter by trade, living at 333 East Third street, Maysville, Ky., says:

"I value Doan's Kidney Pills as highly today as I did when I first used them in 1899. I got a horrid and used it for a pain in my back and other evidences of a disordered condition of the kidneys which had given me much trouble for two years or more. This remedy acted promptly and I was soon cured. I did not notice any of the difficulties until some four years later, or about a year ago. I again procured Doan's Kidney Pills at J. James Wood & Son's Drugstore and all symptoms of the trouble were quickly and thoroughly removed. Since then I have not noticed any signs of trouble of any kind arising from my back or kidneys. I most cheerfully re-indorse Doan's Kidney Pills, for they are certainly worthy of recommendation."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Forster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.
